RAIN vs. LOVE.

You do not know, my Mollie, dear,
The love that fills my heart;
'Tis full of loy when thou art near,
'Tis sad when we're apart.
It's very sad, this gloomy night,
As I list to the pattering rain,
And think of thins eves whose radiant light
Expels from my heart all pain.

No tongue can tell, no words express No longue can tell, no words express
The change you've wrought in me.
And knowing this is my love's excess,
I'll pray for idessings on thee.
And thus I pray this gloomy night,
As I list to the pattering rain:
"May the Lord of mercy and glory bright,
Expel from thy heart all pain."

Still, Mollie, dear, I moan and sigh,
And seek in vain for rest,
While the dreary hours go slowly by,
And sorrow pervades my breast.
For I miss thy smile this gloom, night,
As I list to the pattering rain.
That smile whose beauty would requite
For these weary hours of pain. It is said 1,500 bales of cotton will e raised in Pemiscot county, this year.
